

Sharsheret Joins the Race Against Breast Cancer

This fall, Sharsheret, a national, not-for-profit organization supporting Jewish women living with breast cancer, will join thousands of women and men gathering in New York City's Central Park to participate in the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure. Hundreds of volunteers, friends, and family members are expected to join Team Sharsheret for this monumental fundraising and awareness event to be held on Sunday, September 9.

In 2006, more than 300 women, men, and children joined Team Sharsheret, making it the largest team at the race. Said Executive Director

Eillene Leistner, "Race for the Cure is one of very few opportunities for Sharsheret to meet the women that we serve. It is inspiring to see what can grow from a few passionate women - hundreds of people excited about being in Central Park and running with our team." Those interested in joining Team Sharsheret for Race for the Cure may do so by logging on to www.komennyc.org and choosing Team Sharsheret. The team will meet on the morning of the race at the northeast corner of 74th Street and Central Park West in New York City.
